give me that straw to build me a house."

Which the man did, and the little pig built a house with it.

THE THREE LITTLE PIGS

Presently came along a wolf and knocked at the door, and said, "Little pig, little pig, let me come in." To which the pig answered, "No, no, by the hair of my chiny chin chin." The wolf then answered to that, "Then I'll huff, and I'll puff, and I'll blow YOUR house in." So he huffed, and he puffed, and he blew his house in and ate up the little pig.

"Oh, in Mr. Smith's home field, and if you will be ready tomorrow morning, I will call for you, and we will go together and get some for dinner."

"Very well," said the little pig, "I will be ready. What time do you mean to go?"

"Oh, at six o'clock."

8

THE THREE LITTLE PIGS

Well, the little pig got up at five, and got the turnips before the wolf came (which he did about six) and who said, "Little pig, are you ready?"

The little pig said, "Ready! I have been and come back again, and got a nice potful for dinner."

Well, the little pig rushed up the following day at four o'clock and went off for the apples, hoping to get back before the wolf came; but he had further to go and had to climb the tree so that just as he was coming down from it, he saw the wolf coming, which, as you may suppose, frightened him very much. "Yes, very," said the little pig. "I will throw you down one." And he threw it so far that, while the wolf was gone to pick it up, the little pig jumped down and ran home. The next day the wolf came again and said to the little pig, "Little pig, there is a fair this afternoon.

Will you go?"

"Oh yes," said the pig, "I will go.

LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD

LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD

Once upon a time, there was a dear little girl who was loved by everyone who looked at her, but most of all by her granny, and there was nothing that she would not have given to the child.

Once she gave her a little riding hood of red velvet, which suited her so well that she would never wear anything else; so she was always called.
'Little Red Riding Hood.'

Set out before it gets hot, and when you are going, walk nicely and quietly and do not run off the path, or you may fall and break the bottle, and then your granny will get nothing, and when you go into her room, don't forget to say,
'Good morning, and don't peep into every corner before you do it.' "I will take great care," said Little Red Riding Hood to her mother and gave her hand on it.

3

LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD

The granny lived out in the wood, half a league from the village, and just as Little Red Riding Hood entered the wood, a wolf met her. Red Riding Hood did not know what a wicked creature he was and was not at all afraid of him. "Good day, Little Red Riding Hood," said he. "Thank you kindly, wolf."
"Where are you going so early, Little Red Riding Hood?"
"To my granny's."
"What have you got in your apron?"

LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD

Little Red Riding Hood raised her eyes, and when she saw the sunbeams dancing here and there through the trees, and pretty flowers growing everywhere, she thought: "Suppose I take granny a fresh nosegay; that would please her too. It is so early in the day that I shall still get there in good time." So she ran from the path into the wood to look for flowers.

And whenever she had picked one, she fancied that she saw a still prettier one farther on and ran after it, and so got deeper and deeper into the wood.

Meanwhile, the wolf ran straight to the granny's house and knocked at the door.

"Little Red Riding Hood," replied the wolf,

"I am bringing pie and apple cider, so open the door."

"Lift the latch," called out the granny, "I am too weak and cannot get up." The wolf lifted the latch, the door sprang open, and without saying a word, he went straight to the granny's bed and devoured her. Then he put on her clothes, dressed himself in her cap, laid himself in bed, and drew the curtains.

Little Red Riding Hood, however, had been running about picking flowers, and when she had gathered so many that she could carry no more, she remembered her granny and set out on the way to her.

"All the better to hear you with, my child," was the reply. "But, granny, what big eyes you have!" she said. "All the better to see you with, my dear."

And scarcely had the wolf said this, then with one bound, he was out of bed and swallowed up Red Riding Hood. When the wolf had appeased his appetite, he lay down again in the bed, fell asleep, and began to snore very loudly. The huntsman was just passing the house and thought to himself, "How the old woman is snoring! I must just see if she wants anything." So he went into the room, and when he came to the bed, he saw that the wolf was lying in it.

"Do I find you here, you old sinner!" said he.

"I have long sought you!" But just as he was going to fire at him, it occurred to him that the wolf might have devoured the granny and that she might still be saved, so he did not fire but took a pair of scissors and began to cut open the stomach of the sleeping wolf. When he had made two snips, he saw the little red riding hood shining, and then he made two snips more, and the little girl sprang out, crying, "Ah, how frightened I have been! How dark it was inside the wolf."

After that, the aged granny came out alive also, but scarcely able to breathe.
